DETAILED ACTION

The amendment and response filed on 11 May 2007 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, and 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Noriyuki et al. (JP 04-365349), in view of Kazuo et al. (JP 2000-001771) and Hide (JP 2001-316797), all of record.

Regarding claims 1 and 5, Noriyuki ('349) teaches in figures 1 and 2 a method of forming film on a substrate (no number), the substrate held by one of a plurality of substrate holders (T), and repeatedly using the plurality of substrate holders to form film on a substrate, at least one substrate holder is coated with film from forming the film on the substrate.

Noriyuki ('349) does not disclose that the film is used in a plasma display panel, that the film is made in an evaporating room, or at least one holder in the evaporating room is not coated with the film.

Further regarding claims 1 and 5, Kazuo ('771) teaches a film being made for a plasma display in a chamber (2, read evaporating room) for the purpose of improving the density and increasing the release coefficient of the secondary electrons.

Kazuo ('771) does not disclose the at least one holder in the evaporating room is not coated with the film.

Further regarding claims 1 and 5, Hide ('797) teaches in paragraph 28 a method of making a film comprised of, in part, shields (11a, 11b) which prevent film from being formed on the substrate for the purpose of improving the ease of maintenance of the carriers.

Hence it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the shields of Hide with the chamber of Kazuo in the manufacturing steps of Noriyuki for the purpose of improving the ease of maintenance of the carriers and increasing the release coefficient of the secondary electrons.

Regarding claim 2, the number of substrate holders coated verses non-coated is an obvious choice in design, depending upon the required amount of film to be produced.

Regarding claim 4, Hide ('797) teaches in paragraph 28 a frame (16) retaining the substrate (17) and a dummy substrate (15) retained by another frame, and the film is removed from the dummy substrate.

The reason for combining is the same as for claim 5 above.

Regarding claim 6, Hide ('797) teaches in paragraph 28 the elements not coated with the film comprise at least a frame (16) retaining the substrate (17) and a dummy substrate (15) retained by another frame.

The reason for combining is the same as for claim 5 above.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, and 4-6 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
